Halloween

On Halloween, the moon shines bright,
A spooky and enchanted night.
With costumes wild and scary masks,
In search of treats, our only tasks.

Ghosts and goblins, witches too,
In the night, they spook and boo.
Bats take flight, owls hoot and call,
As the harvest moon begins to fall.

Jack-o'-lanterns with eerie grins,
Flickering candles from within.
Haunted houses with creaking doors,
Each step you take, the heart implores.

Candy corn and caramel sweets,
As trick-or-treaters roam the streets.
Their bags grow heavy with sugary haul,
Laughter and delight, the best of all.

In the dark, the monsters play,
But it's all in fun on this October day.
So enjoy the spooks and the fun,
For Halloween will soon be done.
